

Columbus Community Heritage Museum

Business Description

The Columbus Community Heritage Museum was established to ensure the preservation of collections. It was also to present information about our community and the significance of our surroundings. The library opened its doors in May of 2006 to show the communities history. They have had a number of activities since then, including 4-H photo exhibits, fair exhibits, school photos, and at Christmas set up a parlor display.

Membership

For the Columbus Community Heritage Museum you can become a member. Your yearly membership contribution will help with utility costs, insurance, supplies needed for displays, paper, and supplies to help preserve photos and collections of artifacts. Below you will find suggested membership levels and amounts. These start at $25 and up, but this will also include a membership
